

WHAT you lose thru baking failure must be added to baking costs—it has to be paid for.

Calumet Baking Powder will save you all of that. Because when you use it—there are no failures—no losses. Every baking is sweet and palatable—and stays moist, tender and delicious to the last tasty bite.

That's a big saving—but that isn't all. You save when you buy Calumet and you save when you use it.

Pure in the can—Pure in the bake.

It is reasonable in cost and possesses more than the ordinary leavening strength. You pay less and use less. You get the most in purity, dependability and wholesomeness.

In every way—it is the best way to keep down baking costs. That is what has made it the world's biggest selling baking powder—has kept it the favorite of millions of housewives for more than thirty years. Good wholesome bakings can be made only of good materials, no other way, so use only good baking powder and good plain flour (not self-rising flour).

Calumet Sunshine Cake Recipe
1/2 cup of butter, 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 cup water, 2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder, 1 teaspoon lemon, yolks of 9 eggs. Then mix in the regular way.

MUTT.

Martin County Agent

Promoting Good Poultry

Davella, Ky., March 10, 1921. To the poultry raisers of the county:

Through the courtesy of the Inez Deposit Bank, Inez, Ky., a very unusual opportunity is given the poultry raisers of this county to get a start in pure-bred poultry or to introduce new blood into their flocks. The plan is as follows:

Arrangements have been made to obtain setting eggs in large quantities from purebred, selected utility flocks of single Comb White Leghorns, the standard variety for this county. These eggs are to be distributed to boys and girls 10 to 18 years of age inclusive, who make application for them, and agree to return two (2) pullets next fall or pay $1.25 for each setting received.

The object of this plan is to improve the poultry in this county by increasing the number of purebred flocks. It is hoped that each lot of eggs taken will furnish a start from which a purebred flock will develop. No application for less than three (3) settings will be considered. The eggs may be obtained at the office of Superintendent of Schools, Inez, Ky., each Wednesday and Saturday after March 25th, 1921. Be sure to notify us at once as to the date you want the eggs so we can act for you in ordering.

You can not afford to miss this opportunity. Let your boy or girl fill out the application below and mail to me.

Yours very truly,
PARNELL CRUM,
Field Agent in Club Work.

I hereby make application for three (3) settings of purebred S. C. White Leghorn eggs. I will want them about..... 1921, and agree to deliver to Parnell Crum, or his representative at Inez, Ky., between Nov. 1 and 25th, 1921, two (2) good, salable pullets or $1.25 for each setting received.

Date..... 1921.
Boy or Girl sign here.....

I hereby agree and bind myself that the above named party, whose name is signed thereto will perform the obligation of this application within the time stated therein.

Given under my hand this..... day of..... 1921.

Surety sign here:.....
NOTICE:—All sureties on above notes should be responsible persons, preferably owners of real estate.

In Squire McDowney's court at Crum Saturday a very unusual thing took place. A party was being tried for a misdemeanor and demanded a jury. The jury was selected and then the defendant pleaded guilty. The case was given to the jury which returned a verdict of not guilty.—Vanceburg Sun.

His Typewriter

By FREDERICK CLARKE

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Then you do love me," he whispered, as he held her in his arms and tried to reach her lips with his.

Rosy made no audible reply, but gave a little sigh of satisfaction and cuddled closer in the encircling arms.

"You'll never let anything come between us?" he pleaded, this time succeeding in turning the pretty face to his, and preventing any reply by covering the little mouth. At last, however, Hugh managed to gain from the beautiful young girl her confession of love, and then the two began planning for an early marriage. This was Tuesday night.

Wednesday morning a cloud arose on the horizon of their love. Rosy was singing at her work around the house, when Kathryn Steward ran up the steps. Kathryn had been married three months, and Rosy was extremely anxious to confide her engagement to her friend, so she ran to open the door. Before their greetings were fairly over she began to pave the way for her confession.

"Hugh was here last night," she smiled.

"Hugh who?" Kathryn asked, although she knew as well as Rosy.

"Hugh Howard."

"Well, what of it?" Kathryn asked, going over to the mantel and arranging her hair before the glass.

"Why, I—well—he was here," Rosy faltered.

Kathryn turned. "You don't mean to say that you are interested in him?" she said. There was real concern in her voice.

"What makes you say that?" Rosy cried, her eyes filled with tears.

Kathryn forgot her hair, and took her friend in her arms. "I'll tell you," she said, softly.

"Rich knows Hugh very well indeed, and he told me the other night that he was crazy about a typewriter. Those were his very words."

Poor little Rosy began to cry. Perhaps, if left to herself, she might have sent for Hugh and asked for an explanation, but under Kathryn's persuasive direction she wrote him the following note:

"I am going to ask you to forget what happened last night, to treat it as though it never occurred. Do not try to see me, for I never want to meet you again."

"ROSE PARSONS."

"And now you are coming to our summer cottage with me," Kathryn said decidedly, and before Rosy recovered her breath, Kathryn had explained to Mrs. Parsons, packed Rosy's suitcase, and borne her away.

As the cruel letter slipped from her fingers into the mail box Rosy gave a little sob, and might have written another to recall it, if she had not accidentally come across Hugh on the way to the depot. He did not see her as he was walking beside a remarkably pretty girl, and the two were laughing and talking in an animated manner, although there was nothing love-like in their attitude. Still, to Rosy, this was proof positive of his perfidy.

Just as Hugh was thinking with joyful anticipation of the evening, he received Rosy's letter, and could scarcely believe his eyes as he read the few words her epistle contained.

"Well, of all things!" he said at last, drawing a deep breath.

He went to Richard Steward and asked him if he knew anything about the matter.

"I haven't the remotest idea," that young gentleman returned, and then added:

"Come up with me Saturday, and ask Rosy for yourself. We'll say nothing to the girls about your coming, and take them by surprise."

On Saturday the two went over to the station to meet Richard, and Rosy felt her rebellious heart give a throb of joy when she saw Hugh with her host, although she pretended to be very angry, and would not speak to him.

They all climbed into the boat which was to take them to the Steward cottage, and then Hugh asked quietly:

"What did you tell Rosy about me, Kathryn?"

Kathryn's face grew a little redder than it had been since she first saw Hugh with her husband, but she said stoutly:

"I just told her you were crazy about a typewriter. I think you ought to be ashamed of yourself, Hugh."

Hugh and Richard looked at each other, and then burst into a roar of laughter, while the two girls looked furious.

"So I am," Hugh said at last, "but it is a machine, not a girl. I'm going to have the agency for it, and that is one reason I can think of getting married at this time."

Richard and Kathryn effaced themselves as soon as their guests reached land, and Rosy made up for her willingness to believe evil, although she did ask meekly after a time:

"Who was that I saw you with the other day when we were coming to the depot?"

"Why, the girl who gives demonstrations on the typewriter. She taught me how to get a high rate of speed from the machine so I could show them to better advantage."

Rosy looked up at him with a little shame-faced smile, and then buried her face tearfully but happily on his shoulder.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

BUSINESS IS GOOD

Ford prices are low—the big price reductions have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum factory production and increases may be necessary if a large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore, present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible INCREASES.

On account of recent curtailment in production we anticipate a shortage of Ford cars in a few weeks. This shortage has already developed in certain models.

So if you contemplate the purchase of a Ford—BUY NOW. Satisfactory terms can be arranged.

Place your order with Augustus Snyder, Agent, who is equipped to render efficient, expert service and use nothing but genuine Ford parts for repairs.

GAS VICTIMS SUCCUMB

Nearly six days after she and her roommate were found asphyxiated in a closed room with a gas stove burning, Carolina Zurschmiede of New Albany, died in Louisville. Her companion, Dorothy Smith, had succumbed to pneumonia early Wednesday and it was the same disease which caused the Zurschmiede girl's death. Both girls were waitresses and had slept twelve hours in the gas-filled room when their landlady found them last Friday noon. While the Smith girl did not arouse herself from the state of coma, Miss Zurschmiede became conscious for a few minutes at one time, but never sufficiently to enable her to learn what had happened and the struggle by physicians to save their lives.
